FROM THE DIRECTOR

In Lancaster, England, in the seventies, I was a teenage actor in the Duke’s Playhouse Youth Theatre. We met every Sunday and played for 3 hours. We rehearsed plays, we did exercises, we devised original material and once in a while were invited to participate in a main stage professional production. I was in the chorus of the Christmas pantomime one year: Aladdin. Aladdin was played, if I remember rightly, by Fiona Victory and a comic duo by Harriet Walter (recently here playing Cleopatra with the RSC) and Noreen Kershaw. After I left for University I lost track of some of the actors from my home town but Noreen popped up again on my radar screen in 1980 when I heard from an old friend of this play being produced in Manchester with wrestling and singing, with the curious title of Trafford Tanzi. Tanzi was to be played by Noreen.

For many years, this has been a play that I have had on my list of must-do productions. I am so happy to be able to do it here with these students. Claire Luckham said, “you don’t have to be an athlete [to do this play] but you do have to be fit and brave.”

The cast of this production has worked all semester to learn how to wrestle, coached by Charles Fairbanks, a graduate filmmaker in the school of Art & Design. Their dedication to training with Charles has been a source of pride and joy. Whatever happens with the production, I believe this experience will have an immeasurable impact upon them as performers.

I am sorry that we are unable to serve pints of lager and bitter (as suggested in the script) to help you enjoy the full experience of Trafford Tanzi, but I think the fruits of the labors of the cast, designers and composer/arranger Carlos Valdes will be enough to satisfy your thirst for theatre.

— Malcolm Tulip
Why Wrestling?

In the late 1970s, the Everyman Theatre implemented a new policy that would require their acting company to employ an equal amount of men and women. Claire Luckham was commissioned by the theatre to write a new play that would utilize the troupe’s increased female presence. In 1978, she brought them Trafford Tanzi, which uses a wrestling match to metaphorically describe the struggles of its working-class Mancunian heroine. In the 1960s and 70s, women moved outside the home; and fought for their equal rights in the workplace, on the athletic field, and elsewhere. Women in the world of wrestling have had an especially difficult time finding acceptance. While fans admire male wrestlers as performers and their bouts are viewed as a spectacle of physical strength and athletic skill, the women are not treated with such respect. Oftentimes, matches featuring female wrestlers are intended simply to titillate the male audience. The female wrestler’s body is on display for audiences to objectify and ogle while the male wrestler’s body is appreciated for what it can do. Even when female wrestlers are taken seriously they still fail to find themselves in the spotlight. Women may appear in the early rounds of a tournament but prize fights and final matches are almost exclusively the territory of men. In the wrestling ring of Luckham’s play, issues of objectification and marginalization, which working women are forced to deal with regularly, are made especially prominent.

Luckham’s setting also underlines some of the choices working women face. The female wrestler may find that balancing her athletic career and her family life is especially difficult. Wrestling often involves months-long tours abroad. While on the road, a wrestler has a choice between leaving her children at home with relatives and carting them around from venue to venue. A female wrestler who wishes to have a family must either put her career on hold or sacrifice quality time with her children. To compete with the men, and to share in some of their glory, a female wrestler must also sacrifice some of her femininity. To hold power in the wrestling ring, women are often required to be more brutally aggressive than their male counterparts. These issues exist for women working in many fields. The choices faced by a female wrestler like Tanzi parallel the decisions of a young professional who must choose between motherhood and advancement, and who must choose between being likable but walked over, and being respected but viewed as harsh and icy.

ACKNOWLEDGMENTS

This production is entered in the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival (KC/ACTF). The aims of this national theater education program are to identify and promote quality in college-level theater productions. To this end, each production entered is eligible for a response by a regional KC/ACTF representative, and certain students are selected to participate in KC/ACTF programs involving awards, scholarships, and special grants for actors, playwrights, designers, and critics at both the regional and national levels.
ABOUT THE AUTHORS

CLAIRE LUCKHAM (Book and lyrics) was born in Kenya in 1944 and educated in boarding schools in Dorset & Wiltshire. She trained at the Central School of Speech & Drama as a stage manager and worked at Ipswich and Watford before joining RSC. Her plays include Scum, Yateby and the Whale, Trafford Tanzi, Fish Riding Bikes, Finishing School, Walking on Water, The Girls in the Pool, Moll Flanders, The Dramatic Attitudes of Miss Fanny Kemble, Dogspot, The Seduction of Anne Boleyn, and The Choice, for which she won the Best New Play Award for 1992.

CHRIS MONKS (Music) is currently the Artistic Director of the Stephen Joseph Theatre in Scarborough, England. After graduating he joined The Royal Exchange Theatre Company, where he has composed the scores for over 50 productions. During the 1980s Chris wrote the songs for * Trafford Tanzi*, and was Musical Director on Lennon. In 1995 he directed his reworking of Gilbert and Sullivan's The Mikado for The New Vic. His work at the New Vic includes: Sizwe Banzi Is Dead, One Flew Over the Cuckoo’s Nest, Amadeus, Sweeney Todd, A Midsummer Night's Dream, Billy Liar, Oliver! and On Golden Pond. His writing for the stage includes: Big Nose!, co-written with Kwame Kwei-Armah, The Bat, Beauty and the Beast, Trojan Women, and a trilogy of Mozart adaptations - The Magic Flute, The Marriage of Figaro, and Don Giovanni.

CARLOS VALDES (Composer/Arranger/Music Director/Musician) is a junior musical theatre major at U-M. Credits include original music and lyrics for the StarkidPotter musical Me and My Dick (Basement Arts), arrangements for EGO: A Late Night R&B and Pop Concert (Basement Arts), bass guitarist for See Rock City (U-M SMTD), The Voices of Black American Musical Theatre, and with Ann Arbor supergroup The Phoniks.
